SLANDER.

There is nothing which wings its flight so swiftly as calumny; nothing which is uttered with more ease; nothing which is listened to with more readiness, or dispersed more widely. Slander soaks into the mind as water soaks into low and marshy places, where it becomes stagnant and offensive. Slander is like the Greek fire which burns unquenched beneath the water, or, like the weeds which, when you have extirpated in one place, are sprouting vigorously in another. Or it is like the wheel which catches fire as it goes and burns fiercer conflagration as its speed increases. The tongue of the slanderer is never tired; in one form or another it manages to keep itself in constant employment. Sometimes it drips honey and sometimes gall. It is bitter now, then sweet. It insinuates or assails directly, according to circumstances. It will hide a curse under a smooth word and administer poison in the phrases of love. Like death, it "loves a shining mark," and is never so available and eloquent as when it can blight the hopes of the noble minded, soil the reputation of the pure, and break down the character of the brave and strong. No soul of high estate can delight in slander. It indicates lapse, tendency toward chaos, utter depravity. It proves that somewhere in the soul there is a weakness, a waste, evil nature. Education and refinement are no proof against it. They often serve only to polish the slanderer's tongue, increase its tact, and give suppleness and strategy. He who shoots at the stars may hurt himself but not endanger them. When any man speaks ill of us we are to make use of it as a cantine, without troubling ourselves at the calumny. He is in a wretched case who values himself upon the opinions of others, and depends upon their judgment for the peace of his life. The contempt of injurious words stifles them, but resentment revives them. He who values himself upon the conscience and not opinion, never needs approvals. When ill spoken of take it thus: If you have not deserved it you are none the worse; if you forever. Then let us be more careful of our precious souls, to secure their best interest and provide for have, then mend. Flee home to your own conscience, and examine your own heart. If you are guilty it is just correction; if not guilty it is fair instruction; make use of both so shall you distill honey out of gall, and out of an open ear you may make a secret friend. That man who attempts to bring down and depreciate those who are above him does not thereby elevate himself. He rather sinks himself, while those whom he traduces are benefited rather than injured by the slander of one so base as he. He who indulges in slander is like one who throws ashes to the windward, which comes back to the same place and covers him all over. To be continually subject to the breath of slander will tarnish the purest virtue as a constant exposure to the atmosphere will obscure the lustre of the brightest gold; but in either the real value continues the same, although the currency may be somewhat impeded. Dirt on the character, if unjustly thrown, like dirt on the clothes, should be let alone awhile until it dries, then it will rub off easily enough.

Slander, like other poisons, when administered in very heavy doses, is often thrown off by the intended victim, and thus relieves where it was intended to kill. How small a matter will start a slanderous report! How frequently is the honesty and integrity of a man supposed of by a smile or shrug! How many good and generous actions have been sunk into oblivion by a distrustful look, or stamped with the reputation of proceeding from bad motives by a mysterious and reasonable whisper! A man hint, a significant look, a mysterious countenance, directing to a particular person, is often amply sufficient to start the tongue of slander.

Never does a man portray his own character more vividly than his manner in portraying another's. There is something unusual about the man whom you have never heard say a good word about any mortal, but who can say much of evil, of nearly all he is acquainted with. Never speak evil of another, even with a cause. Remember we all have our faults, and if we expect charity from the world, we must be charitable ourselves. Most persons have visible faults, and most are sometimes inconsistent; upon these faults and mistakes petty scandal delights to feast. And even when free from external blemishes envy and jealousy can start the bloodhound of suspicion—create a noise that will attract attention and many may be led to suppose there is game where there is nothing but thin air.

A word once spoken can never be recalled, therefore it is prudent to think twice before we speak, especially when ill is the burden of our talk. Give no heed to an infamous story handed you by a person known to be an enemy to the one he is defaming, neither condemn your neighbor unheard, for there are always two sides to a story. Hear no ill of a friend, nor speak any of an enemy. Believe not all you hear, nor repeat all you believe. Be cautious in believing ill of others, and more cautious in reporting it. There is seldom anything uttered in malice which returns to the heart of the speaker. Believe nothing against another but on good authority, nor repeat what may hurt another, unless it be a greater hurt to others to conceal it. It is a sign of bad reputation to take pleasure in hearing ill of our neighbors. He who sells his neighbor's credit at a low rate makes a market for another to buy his at the same rate. He who indulges himself in calumniating or ridiculing the absent plainly shows his company what they may expect from him after he leaves them.

Deal tenderly with the absent. Say nothing to inflict a wound on their reputation. They may be wrong and wicked, yet your knowledge of it does not oblige you to disclose their character, except to save others from injury. Then do it in a way that bespeaks a spirit of kindness for the absent offender. Evil reports are often the results of misunderstanding or of evil designs, or they proceed from an exaggerated or partial disclosure of facts. Wait, learn the whole story before you decide; then believe what the evidence compels you to believe, and no more. But even then take heed not to indulge in the unkindness else you dissipate all the spirit of prayer for them, and unnerve for doing them good. On many a mind and many a heart there are sad inscriptions deeply engraved by the tongue of slander, which no effort can erase. They are more durable than the impression of the diamond on the glass, for the inscription on the glass may be destroyed by a blow, but the impression on the heart lasts forever. Let not the stinging of calumny sink too deeply in your soul. He who is never subject to slander is generally of too little mental account to be worthy of it. Remember that it is always the best fruit the birds eat, the wasp lights on the finest flowers, and that slanders are like flies, that overlook all man's good parts in order to light on his sores. Know that slander is not long lived, provided that your conduct does not justify them, and that truth, the child of time, ere long will appear to vindicate thee."—Golden Gems of Life.

The word Catholic means "universal," and the Catholic church simply means "universal church," as for many centuries the Catholic church was the only church.

Origin of Denominational Names.

The Puritans were so named in derision at their professions of being purer than other people.

The Presbyterians took their name from a Greek word meaning "Elder."—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

The Church of England was so called because its jurisdiction did not extend outside of that kingdom.

The Baptists had their name from John the Baptist, they claiming to perform the rite of baptism in the manner that he did.

The Sabbatharians were so called from their observing the seventh day as the Sabbath. The founder was named Brabroune.

The Faith-healers were thus called from the fact that they claimed by the exercise of faith and by prayer to heal all manner of diseases.

Protestants were at first so called because their representatives protested at the Diet of Spiers, in 1529, against the action of the emperor.

The Episcopalians are so called from their belief in an episcopal form of church government—that is, a system providing for bishops and archbishops.

The Mohammedans were so called because they were the followers of Mohammed, and believers in his doctrine as revealed in the Koran. Mohammed was born 571 A. D. and died 632 A. D.

The Congregationalists had their name from their doctrine that each congregation was a unit, should be independent of all others, and manage its own affairs in its own way.

The Campbellites are so called from Alexander Campbell, the founder of this denomination. The name is not accepted by its members, who consider it offensive, and call themselves "Christians."

The Mormons received this name from the book of Mormon, which was claimed by Joseph Smith to be a revelation to himself. They themselves reject the name, and call themselves "The Church of the Latter-Day Saints of Jesus Christ."

The Lutherans took their name from Martin Luther, who was born in 1483, and died in 1546. At first the name was used as a term of ridicule, but was adopted by those to whom it was applied and soon became a serious designation.

The Friends, or Quakers at first called themselves "Seekers," from their assertion that they sought the kingdom of heaven in the same manner as it was sought by Nicodemus. They were called Quakers in ridicule because Fox, their founder, frequently bade his hearers "Quake and tremble at the word of the Lord."

Hood's Cures.

In saying that Hood's Sarsaparilla cures, its proprietors make no idle or extravagant claim. The advertising of Hood's Sarsaparilla is always within the bounds of reason because it is true, it always appeals to the sober, common sense of thinking people because it is true, and is always fully substantiated by endorsements which, in the financial world, would be accepted without a moment's hesitation.

Read the testimonials published in behalf of Hood's Sarsaparilla, all from reliable, grateful people.

THE MILL CREEK ROAD.

Conference Between Wolfe County and Lexington Chamber of Commerce.

This morning a meeting was held in the ordinary of the Phoenix Hotel by a committee of prominent citizens of Wolfe county, interested in the proposed Kentucky & Ohio railroad, and the Chamber of Commerce committee on railroads and transportation.

The committee from Wolfe county, consisting of Messrs. S. S. Combs, J. B. Hollon and C. C. Hanks, of Campton, was met at the L. & E. depot by Messrs. J. A. Curry, W. R. Smith and P. T. Farnsworth. Besides the above mentioned, Mr. J. D. Livingston, vice president and general manager of the Lexington & Eastern Railroad; Mr. S. T. Campbell, J. T. Slade and others were present. Mr. Campbell presided at the meeting and Mr. Farnsworth was the secretary.

After the meeting was called to order Mr. Combs addressed the meeting. Mr. Combs detailed at length the great natural resources of Wolfe county, and then went on to show what great benefit Lexington would derive by having the coal and lumber resources developed. He said it meant much to Lexington merchants, and he believed every dollar subscribed toward the building of the road would find its way back to Lexington.

He said three routes had been surveyed, but Wolfe county was interested only in what is called the Mill Creek route. This route tapped the Lexington & Eastern railroad thirty miles this side of Jackson, and was about thirty-six miles long. It would pass through the most thriving towns in that section of the state, as Hazel Green, Walnut Grove, Campton, Ezel and Maytown. The opening of such a territory could not fail to be of great benefit to Lexington. He thought Lexington could well subscribe a considerable sum of money toward the enterprise.

Mr. J. D. Livingston then showed a map with the three surveys on it. He explained the three different routes and told about the country through which they ran. Mr. Livingston then addressed the meeting and pointed out the many advantages of the Mill Creek route.

Mr. Hollon next spoke and he said he thought Lexington should subscribe $25,000 to the new road. In view of the fact that all the business of that section would be thrown to Lexington he did not think it an unusual request. Several Lexington gentlemen asked Mr. Hollon questions about the Mill Creek route. He said the citizens of Wolfe county were very anxious to have the road built with few exceptions.

Continuing, he said all the right of way had been secured except about three miles and a half. Eighty-four thousand ties were needed, and they could be secured. The remaining right of way could be secured for about $1,500. Lexington's subscription should be at least $25,000. Mr. Hollon spoke at length of the great forests and coal lands in Wolfe and adjoining counties.

Mr. Curry then suggested that the committee when they return to Wolfe county draw up a written request for a subscription from Lexington.

Mr. Curry asked the gentlemen to state with the proposition all the facts in connection with route, estimate the cost of the remaining right of way and the terms for the Lexington subscription. The gentlemen said they would do so at once. The proposition will be forwarded to Lexington and a special meeting of the Chamber of Commerce will be called to discuss the proposition.

The Lexington gentlemen are very favorably impressed with the proposition of the new road. It is certain that Lexington would reap great benefit from the proposed road. The right of way was granted to the road on condition that work on the road should begin within a year and that the road should be completed by the end of the next year.

The name Ohio & Kentucky is taken from the old charter. The original intention was to build the road to the Ohio river.—Lexington Leader, July 25.

In the Courts.

Squire Sebastian held his regular three days court at Daysboro last week and disposed of a number of civil and misdemeanor cases. John Lackey and Wick Landrum were each fined $20 and cost for disturbing public worship at the Sandfield school house. They failed to pay or replevy and were sent to jail.

Clay Purcell, 10 years old, was bound over to circuit court to answer the charge of attempted rape on Clarinda Wilson, aged 4 years, daughter of Andy Wilson. He was sent to jail in default of bail.

Will Hall was held over to answer in the circuit court for stealing oats. He went to jail in default of bail.

Two colored ministers of the gospel, Revs. J. H. Scott and J. T. Wilson, were each fined $20 for disturbing public worship. This is pretty high for "talkin' out in meetin'."

Judge Carson held his usual term of county court last Monday, but there was but little business.

J. T. Day, of this place, on Tuesday morning discovered on his Lick Branch farm a fine vein of canal coal, which will prove another incentive to the building of the Mill Creek and Caney railroad. Let the good work go on until every vein of coal or valuable mineral of whatever kind in these mountains shall have been brought to light. Then we can force railroads to come to us without solicitation.

DEMOCRATIC STATE TICKET.

For Governor,

P. WAT HADDIN, of Mercer.

For Lieutenant Governor,

R. T. TYLER, of Fulton.

For Treasurer,

R. C. FORD, of Clay.

For Auditor,

L. C. NORMAN, of Boone.

For Register of the Land Office,

G. B. SWANGO, of Wolfe.

For Attorney General,

W. J. HENDRICK, of Fleming.

For Secretary of State,

HENRY S. HALE, of Graves.

For Sup't. of Public Instruction,

ED PORTER THOMPSON, of Owen.

For Commissioner of Agriculture,

ION B. NALL, of Louisville.

For the Legislature—91st District,

JOSEPH C. LYKINS,

Of Wolfe.

In the primary held Saturday, July 27, Hon. J. C. Lykins, of this county, was nominated as the Democratic candidate for this 91st legislative district, over Robert C. Rose, also of the county, by 101 majority. Since the primary Mr. Lykins has said that his preference for the U. S. senate is Simon Bolivar Buckner, but the following dispatch from Richmond, the home of McCreary, indicates that there is another understanding. However, Mr. Lykins is the Democratic nominee, and THE HERALD is a Democratic paper, hence we are for him whatever his preference. But here's the dispatch:

"Information was received here today announcing the nomination in Wolfe and Morgan counties of the Hon. Joseph Lykins, Democrat, as candidate for representative over Rose. Lykins is for sound money and McCreary. The Democratic majority in the district is about 600."

The Rads say that Lykins will see "Seitz" before he goes to the legislature. They are off. It will be "Seitz" to see the Rads go down in ignominious defeat.

Mr. Rose is much gratified at a partial result of the late primary at least. The Red river valley voted nearly nine to one for him.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Comptroller Bowler still has the center of the stage, his coming decision of the constitutionality of the sugar bounty law being the principal topic of conversation in official circles. The Louisiana congressional delegation played their highest trump when they told Secretary Carlisle that if the money appropriated by congress was not paid by their constituents that the state might as well be wiped out of the Democratic column, as it would surely become a Republican state. What effect, if any, this will have, remains to be seen. If it be true, as has been charged, that Comptroller Bowler is only carrying out a prearranged plan to keep that money in the treasury, his decision will be against the law, anyway. If on the other hand, the president desires this money to be paid, it will be an easy matter for him to find a comptroller if Mr. Bowler is not convinced by the arguments made, who believes the sugar bounty to be constitutional, and who will not hesitate to approve the payment of the money appropriated for that purpose by congress. In addition to the entire congressional delegation, the Louisiana sugar interests are represented by Judge

Simmes, of New Orleans. Ex-Senator Manderson is the chief counsel of the Nebraska beet sugar people. The arguments are likely to be interesting, from a legal standpoint, whatever the decision may be.

The first examination of applicants for appointment as composers in the government printing office, since the employees of that establishment were placed under civil service rules, is now being held. There are more than two hundred applicants, and it will take the rest of the week to complete the examination of them all. Those who get the required percentage will be placed on the eligible list and appointed when there are vacancies or when more help is needed at the government printing office. Judging from their talk, the "comps" who have taken the examination are not overburdened with admiration for the wisdom displayed by the questions asked. One of them, who has had wide experience both in newspaper and job offices, and who is credited by all who know him to be a first-class all-around printer, being equally at home when setting type, making-up or reading proof, was asked what he thought of the questions asked at the examination. He replied: "Some of them were good, calculated to show whether a man had the knowledge every first-class printer should have, but others were, in my opinion, absolute rot, dealing with matters having no connection with any of the practical branches of the craft with which I am acquainted."

A business man who has just returned from a trip through Florida, says: "There is intense interest in Florida over the Cuban revolution, and every scrap of news from the seat of war is eagerly sought for and read with avidity. Everybody down there sympathizes with the Cubans, and if it were not for Uncle Sam's interference I believe that 10,000 young and daring spirits would leave the state at a day's notice to help the Cubans in their struggle for liberty."

There has been considerable talk among the politicians about a statement from an apparently trustworthy source, that Secretary Lamont was not in accord with President Cleveland as to who ought to be nominated for president by the Democrats. According to this story, President Cleveland wishes the Democratic convention to give him a chance to do the George Washington third term declination act, by nominating him by acclamation, and after he has declined the "unexpected honor" etc., he wishes the convention to nominate Secretary Carlisle. The last part of the program is where Secretary Lamont gets in his kick. He doesn't object to giving Mr. Cleveland a chance to do what only one president ever had an opportunity to do, but he does object to making Secretary Carlisle the nominee of his party. He points out how weak Secretary Carlisle would be with the silver Democrats, who are not ready to forgive his desertion of them, and expresses the opinion that ex-Secretary Whitney would make a much stronger candidate than Mr. Carlisle. In taking this position Secretary Lamont shows that he possesses gratitude, which is rare in public life, and not too plentiful anywhere. When Lamont left Washington in 1889, after serving four years as President Cleveland's private secretary, he was probably poorer than when he accepted that position. It was then that Mr. Whitney employed Lamont to look after his street railway interests and it was not long before he was drawing $25,000 a year salary, besides being let in on the ground floor to some very profitable speculations. When Secretary Lamont retires from public life he will probably resume his profitable connection with the Whitney interests. All things considered it is not surprising that Lamont should, even against President Cleveland's wishes, be in favor of the nomination of Whitney.

Elder W. H. Cord, principal of Hazel Green academy, who is this week teaching the Powell county institute, will arrive here Saturday and will hold services at the Christian church Sunday morning and evening. Bro. Cord has been spending his vacation in Mason and Owen counties.

A POLECAT AND A JEALOUS LOVER.

The Former Throws Into the Midst of a Dance.

GREENUP, Ky., July 26—A big dance on Brushy fork of Tygart creek Wednesday night, which was attended by a majority of the people of that and adjoining neighborhoods, ending with a sensational incident. George Daniels and Jack Sheneer were rivals for the hand of Miss Lotta West, and Daniels accompanied her to the dance, a proceeding which so enraged Spencer that he did not attend the dance, but secured a companion and went hunting. About 10 o'clock their dogs caught a skunk, which they intended to take home.

On their way home they were compelled to pass the house where the dance was in progress, and upon looking in at the window Spencer saw Daniels and Miss West standing a little closer together than he thought they should. This further enraged Spencer so much so that he took the polecat by the tail and threw it at Daniels. His aim was not good and the animal struck Miss West squarely in the face, nearly knocking her down.

Daniels lost no time in getting outside to see the author of the unpleasantness, and seeing Spencer getting away, started in pursuit, overtaking him in a few minutes and brought him back to where the crowd had gathered outside the house. Several modes of punishment were suggested, but the one that met the heartiest approval was the following, which was suggested by Miss West, and carried out immediately: Spencer's hands were tied securely behind his back and the skunk fastened to his breast in such a manner as to make it impossible to escape the foul odor arising from it. The fellow was then told to go home, a mile distant, followed by several to see that he did not get the animal loose. The proceeding broke up the dance and also won the young woman for Daniels.

Jonathan Gave to Green.

The state press is making a great ado about the statement that Uncle Jonathan Quicksall, of Wolfe, had deserted the Populists and returned to the Democratic fold. Uncle Jonathan realizes that the distance between the two parties is so small that the transit is easily made. Uncle Jonathan is quite a good old man and wants to help his neighbor, Green Swango, because Green helped him in his race for the constitutional convention. We suppose that Green was as much of a Populist while he was helping Jonathan as Jonathan is Democrat while he is helping Green.

Home and Abroad.

It is the duty of everyone, whether at home or traveling for pleasure or business, to equip himself with the remedy which will keep up strength and prevent illness, and cure such ills as are liable to come upon all in everyday life. For instance, Hood's Sarsaparilla as a general tonic, and to keep the blood pure and less liable to absorb the germs of disease, will be well nigh invaluable. Change of drinking water often causes serious trouble, especially if one has been used to spring water in the country. From a few drops to a teaspoonful of Hood's Sarsaparilla in a tumbler of water will prevent the water having any injurious effect.

Hood's Vegetable Pills, as a cathartic, cause no discomfort, no disturbance, no loss of sleep, but assist the digestive organs, so that satisfactory results are effected in a natural and regular manner.

Clarence R. Day, son of Col. L. M. Day, formerly of Daysboro, but now a resident of Beattysville, is visiting relatives and friends in and about Hazel Green. Clarence is a cadet at West Point, N. Y., and is now enjoying the only furlough allowed in four years, which occurs at the end of the first two years, the time he has already spent in learning to be "a bold soldier boy." His entire class, 68 in number, are just now enjoying the same freedom. Clarence says he likes the life of a cadet very much, though it is something of a lonely existence, and thinks that when he gets into the army proper, which will be at the end of two more years, he will like it better. He is looking fine, has grown wonderfully since he lived among us, and our citizens will be glad to welcome him to his old home.

The firm of Rose & Davis have turned out in the last two or three weeks some of the best road wagons ever seen in the mountains of Kentucky. Among the number we note one for John Henry Campbell and one for John D. Rose, Jr., and a critical examination of the work will convince any one that they are penny wise and pound foolish to patronize anybody away from home when they can secure the best workmanship and the most superior material right at their own door. Money spent at home is distributed among our own people and every one, or nearly every one, finds benefit from it. Send it abroad and not a penny ever finds its way to your own punchbowl. Be wise and patronize home enterprise. It is the life of any community and people who eschew the idea are never prosperous.

One night when Mr. Isaac Reese was staying with me, says M. F. Hatch, a prominent merchant of Quartermaster, Washington, I heard him groaning. On going to his room I found him suffering from cramp colic. He was in such agony I feared he would die. I hastily gave him a dose of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy. He was soon relieved and the first words he uttered were, "what was that stuff you gave me?" I informed him. A few days ago we were talking about his attack and he said he was never without that remedy now. I have used it in my family for several years. I know its worth and do not hesitate to recommend it to my friends and customers. For sale by John M. Rose.

Grant Lacy, who had engaged to teach the Gillmore school in this county, left Monday for Gatesville, Coryell county, Texas, where he has secured a position as book-keeper and salesman with a mercantile establishment at that place. Mr. Lacy taught school in Coryell county a year or so since, and while there made the acquaintance of the gentlemen who compose the firm. He is a young man of the highest integrity and his friends hereabouts hope to hear of his success in the "lone star state."

Rev. J. T. Pieratt has given us a bit of mechanical history. He says the first threshing machine ever in this country was built by Madison Greer in 1800. Uncle Dickey Bowling improved it the next year by building an old time "groundhog." Before that time our grain was threshed out by flails or tramped out by horses when the chaff was fanned away by a sheet.

The many friends of Carl Mize will regret to hear that he is quite ill at the home of his parents with something like fever.

The track at the fair grounds is being put in fine condition and those in management are now ready for your horses.

Now see that your blood is pure. Good health follows the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla which is the one great blood purifier.

Chas. Andre, book-keeper for J. T. Day, of this place, left Sunday for a ten days' visit to his relatives and friends in Lee county, Virginia.

The prospects of the Hazel Green fair are very encouraging. The managers anticipate a larger crowd this year than on any previous year.

People all over the country are preparing their stock for the fair. Do not be taken by surprise, but be ready for your share of the premiums.

Boys, get up your ponies and mules. Big purses will be given by the fair this year, and if you win the race you must get a move on yourself.

Misses Laura Rawlings and Minnie Day, who have been visiting at Beattysville, Jackson and other points are at home again. They report a fine time.

Circumstances over which we had no control caused us to lose this issue of the paper last week, but we sincerely hope the like may never occur again.

S. S. Combs, of Campton, has made several trips of late to the Amys farm, near Daysboro, where he expects to have Mr. Broas mark off a depot ground. Selah.

Our Own People Tell What Hood's Sarsaparilla Has Done for Them.

"When our baby was three weeks old he broke out with sores which the doctor called a severe case of eczema. We tried everything that we could think of but he failed to get relief. We consulted several doctors but their medicine was of no avail. Seeing a similar case which had been Cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla we determined to try it. I procured some of this medicine and it proved to be the only thing which gave satisfaction. Our child is now two years and eight months old and weighs 40 pounds. He is a sprightly lad and is very fleshy. He has been completely cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla. This has proved a celebrated case in this vicinity and his cure has been a surprise to all those who know about it." J. T. WHALEY, Hazel Green, Kentucky.

The record of remarkable cures effected enables us truthfully to say that

Hood's Sarsaparilla Is the Only True Blood Purifier Prominently in the public eye today. Be sure to get Hood's and only Hood's. Do not be induced to buy any other.

Hood's Pills easy to buy, easy to take, easy in effect.

THE SHE TOOK THE BUI.
A Charitably Inclined Young Traveler States a Good Deal.
A good woman whose heart is set upon raising money for charity is not easily turned from her purpose. Such a woman was the one who, last summer, was on a steamer from Liverpool last summer. Most of her pocket-money—she is represented as a millionaire's daughter—was devoted to the cause of the poor, and in addition she sends much of her leisure in crocheting wonderful and useless things, which she persuades her wealthy friends and admirers to buy for the benefit of the poor.

On the steamer she did little else but crocheting things and then sell them—except that she spent some considerable time in filling a diary. Some of the friends who she had inveigled into buying fancy work fell into the trick of laughing at her about her diary, and finally entered into a little conspiracy. "I say now, Miss Blank," said one, "we have decided to strike. We are not going to help your tenement-house heathens another cent's worth unless you sell your diary! How much will you take for it?"

"How much will you give?" asked the girl, after a little reflection. The man offered five dollars. That was a little, the young lady declared, and finally, one thing leading to another, she put the precious volume up at auction. The gentlemen, never dreaming that she could be in earnest, sat upon their bid, till the price stood at sixty-five dollars.

"It is yours, Mr. Jones," said the girl, "but remember my terms are cash, and you must let me make a copy of it."

The laugh was on Jones, and his companions forced him to pay the money on the spot. Miss Blank delivered the diary, and of course there was no holding for the joker to do but to return it unopened, with his compliments.

NEW FOOD FOR WILD FOWL.
An Experiment with Chinese Plants on Columbia Slough Lakes.
The carp having played havoc with the wapatoes in the sloughs, and ponds on the sloughs, and of course the ducks, geese and swan used to feed, Mr. Reeder, of Reeder's Landing, has secured a lot of Chinese wapatoes, which he will plant as an experiment, and, if they will, will try to introduce them in the lakes, etc., says the Portland Oregonian. The Chinese here consume a great many wapatoes, and also bring them from China in many which are different species, being larger and rounder. The only improvement they will be on the native kind is that they are too large for a carp to swallow, while the young lady declared, perhaps bite them in pieces and swallow them.

Several efforts have been made to limit the plants on the island which might attract the waterfowl and enlarge the place of the wapatoes and wildgeon weed, but all such attempts have proved failures. Wild rice, by the sack has been brought from Wisconsin and sowed here, the seeds of the duckweed, which gives flavor to the canals of the Potomac and the Chesapeake, have been sown, and the plants at the Klamath lakes, have been planted; but none of them flourished. The June rise of the Columbia is a very different thing from what any of the plants have been accustomed to, and covers them with several feet of water, just at the time when they should be making their growth. If something cannot be done to preserve the native plants on which the ducks, geese and swan feed the next generation will have no wildfowl shooting on the Sauries Island.

HAD TO SEE THE BALL GAME.
Philadelphia Lawyer Who Refused to Break an Engagement.
A lawyer with his client called one day at the office of a gentleman who is considered to be one of the leading men of the Philadelphia bar. The lawyer had an important case and he wanted to take the legal big gun with him, as he says, the Philadelphia Times. He explained his business and said he and his client would be back in the afternoon. "I won't be here then," said the lawyer. "I have an engagement at three o'clock, and I won't be here after that hour." "But there is a five thousand dollar fee in this for you," explained the younger lawyer. "Can't help it; I won't be here. You will have to come to-morrow."

"But my client can't come to-morrow."
"Well, I can't break my engagement," said the lawyer. After some further talk it was agreed that a meeting be held that night. That afternoon, having nothing else to do, the lawyer and his client went to a ball game. The first man they saw on the grounds was the great lawyer, who was hurrying for the "Phillies," who was the victor of his lungs. That was his last engagement. Needless to say, he made money enough every year to make him independent.

Training Siamese Youth.
Every year a number of boys are sent from Siam by the king to England to learn different things. One learns typewriting, one learns bookbinding, one learns languages, one learns to read and so on. When they return to Siam, each takes with him some different information to impart to others.

STAGE VIANDS.
The Kind of Food Furnished to Actors in the Play.
When actors partake of a repast on the stage the menu is of many in the audience ask: "Are the viands real?" The answer is, sometimes they are and sometimes they are not. One of Mr. Salvini's recent productions was "Friend Fritz," in which there is a typical stage breakfast.

The writer happened to be behind the scenes on the first night of the play in Philadelphia, and he overheard a conversation not intended for the ears of the audience, between Fritz and Hanczo while seated at the table. From the remarks it will be learned precisely what constituted the menu.

"Just taste this blisque and give me your opinion," said Fritz aloud. The soup was tasted in silence. Then Hanczo remarked sotto voce: "It's awful, governor; there's no salt in it." Then aloud: "Delicious! delicious!" to which Frederick replied: "Perfect! perfect!"

Enter Catherine with the fish, which was a half loaf of rye bread cut in the form of a fish and garnished with lettuce and floating in a gravy of soup.

Joseph's violin was heard by the audience while the fish was being served, but not Fritz's remarks when he whispered: "Eat the fish, boys." "I can't, governor," said Hanczo: "rye bread doesn't agree with me."

The pork pie was next served, but instead of a fish it contained apples. "Alas!" exclaimed Fritz aloud, "this is your favorite dish—a pork pie," to which Hanczo replied with a jolly laugh, and then whispered: "Governor, I can't eat pie, I'm fainting."

The Rhine wine and claret were genuine, and the glasses were always set down empty. This is accounted for by the fact that Salvini is too good an Italian to drink poor quality of wine, and the bottles generally contain the best that can be purchased.

"In New York," said Mr. Salvini to the writer a little later, "a friend of mine brought me a bottle of port which was said to be forty years old, and the company drank it before the audience, which no doubt thought it to be sold for a great sum of sugar and water. But the breakfast scene was played with an unusual amount of earnestness and accuracy that night."

FIRST WATCH EVER MADE.
It Was Constructed of Iron and Is Still in Running Order.
About three hundred and seventy-five years ago the first watch was made, and it is still in running order. Clocks were made long before watches, but the first watch was made by a small clockmaker, who was not until the beginning of the sixteenth century that an ingenious locksmith of Nuremberg, who was called Peter Henlein, now universally accepted as the inventor of the pocket watch, who was a locksmith of Nuremberg, and was born in 1480. The present watch was made certainly not more than 120. The works are entirely of iron. The back of the case and the cover, which are of bronze, and the dial are beautifully ornamented with arabesques of magnificent design, cut into the surface and delicately chased. The dial is divided into twelve hours, but has no minute marks on the spaces. Above the figure 12 there is a small window, and above each of the other figures a small knob, for convenience of feeling the time at night. The early watches had but one hand, the hour hand and the mainspring of hardened iron, had no casing, but was merely confined by four pillars supporting the back plate.

A HIGH HAND.
The Cosmopolitan's Many Roles in Many Lands.

The old-fashioned operation of robbing Peter to pay Paul was lately revived on a large scale at Lyons by a man with a Russian name, who speaks in eight languages, and is well-known in Paris. While in the capital the swindler gave himself out to be a great Muscovite magnate, and so dazzled the proprietor of a music hall and tavern that the Russian hymn was played as the show piece strutted proudly through the place. At Lyons the swindler induced some persons to join him in an alleged purchase of pictures, which were to be resold at a profit. He obtained large advances from one set of victims, and then repaid the others with the same. The swindler, Russian, represented that he was about to purchase the collection of Prince Paolo Borghese, and showed forged documents in proof of these assertions. He obtained about six hundred pounds in this manner, and then decamped to Madrid, where he was arrested. The accused caused some merriment in court when, as the president reminded him that he had passed as a prince in Paris, he answered: "Alas! in that country a man who eats macaroni is a count, and whoever orders a fillet of beef is a prince." The cosmopolitan was sentenced to three years' imprisonment.

Kentucky Democratic State Platform.
FIRST—The Democracy of Kentucky in convention assembled congratulate the country upon the repeal of the McKinley tariff law, and upon the evidence we have on every hand of returning prosperity, under the operations of reduced and equalized taxation; and we denounce as fraught with danger and disaster the threat of our Republican adversaries to re-establish a protective tariff and to re-institute a policy of unequal taxation, which in connection with general misgovernment by the Republican party culminated in the business panic of 1893.

SECOND—The Democratic party, which has always stood for the separation of church and state, for the sake alike of civil and religious freedom, does not hesitate to condemn all efforts to create a distinction among citizens because of differences in faith as repugnant to an enlightened age and abhorrent to the instincts of American freemen.

THIRD—We reaffirm without qualification the principles and policies declared by the National Democratic Platform of 1892, and declare that our present National Democratic Administration is entitled to the thanks of the party for its honest, courageous and statesmanlike management of public affairs, and we express our undiminished confidence in the Democracy and patriotism of President Grover Cleveland and his distinguished co-adviser and Secretary, John G. Carlisle, of Kentucky.

FOURTH—When the Democratic party came into power in 1867 the bonded indebtedness of Kentucky was over $4,600,000. The nominal value of the assets of the sinking fund was about $8,000,000, made up in part of internal improvements that cost over and were carried at a valuation of $4,800,000, which yielded at that time no net revenue, and were worth in cash only about $600,000, thus showing an actual deficit in the sinking fund as compared with our indebtedness of about $900,000. Since 1867 the bonded indebtedness has been reduced to $650,000, and the available assets of the sinking fund more than equal that sum.

We have increased the annual appropriation for support of our charitable institutions from $250,000 in 1867 to $300,000 in 1895, and while improving the judicial system by increasing the number of courts and the frequency of their terms we have been compelled to increase our expenditures, one of the greatest items of which is the cost of criminal prosecutions. We have never erred in being able to decrease the current rate of taxation for general revenue purposes from twenty cents on the one hundred dollars of taxable property in 1867 to fifteen cents in 1895. The Democratic majority have voluntarily increased the annual expenditures for the support of common schools from $250,000 in 1867 to about $2,000,000 in 1895, and by wisely separating the schools for the two races are today giving to the children of the colored race opportunities for education they nowhere else enjoy.

In the face of unexampled difficulties the Democracy party has succeeded in wholly withdrawing convict labor from competition with free labor and in abolishing the practice inherited from the Republican party of leasing the convicts to parties interested solely in making profit out of their labor, and in adopting the modern and improved methods by which the state and its officers are made directly responsible for the management of our state prisons and under which our penitentiary system has been and is being greatly improved.

During the twenty-eight years the people have intrusted the Democratic party with the control of the state government its administration has been characterized by the strictest economy and integrity, and in this regard we invite comparison with any Republican state government.

FIFTH—We express our confidence in the wisdom and honesty with which the present state administration has conducted the affairs of our state government.

We know that it sounds curious to talk about the Electropoise curing incurable diseases, but bear in mind the fact that it is the old treatment that has been pronounced the case incurable. We do not make the claim that we can cure incurable diseases, but we do make the claim with all earnestness that a case pronounced incurable by your family physician is a splendid field for the application of the Electropoise. It may be the treatment necessary, and it is likely to be so. If it fails, this is no argument against the "Poise," but a case, the fact of the physician's pronouncement is proven to be true. But the patient who has been given up by his physician who has again recovered through treatment of the Electropoise.
